The Chronicle.

The editorial mind is filled with misgivings. Ought there, indeed, to be an editorial mind when it is certain that the Magazine, with paper and printing at their present rates, can only be produced at a loss? To raise the price is unthinkable: the goodwill with which all paid the extra sixpence last year would touch the most hardened conscience. Nor can we be deaf to the clamour from our clients in Chester, in London, in America and other places known to Geography, all insisting that they must have their "Have Mynde." There seems nothing for it but to make the venture with Micawber-like optimism and expect that money will "turn up" from somewhere. Such economies as are possible have been made. The table of Contents has been abandoned, the only course on which a multitude of counsellors agreed: for the rest, each voted with transparent sincerity for the exclusion of such items as did not interest her personally. The Editor, therefore, used her own discretion and a blue pencil. The Prize Day programme appears in abbreviated form; reports on games are shortened and the space gained has been put at the disposal of youthful authorship.

The events of the School Year shall be chronicled with exemplary brevity. Immense interest was created by Mr. A. C. Hayter's lecture on "Excavating in Egypt." Mr. Hayter gave us an account of his discoveries while working with Professor Flinders Petrie in the neighbourhood of the Pyramids, and his vivid descriptions and beautiful lantern slides held an audience, of various ages, spellbound for an afternoon. Mr. Hayter, we understand, is contemplating important research work on the site of Segontium. We hope that his route thither may lie through Chester.

The development of an interest in the antiquities of Chester may not have been wholly unconnected with this lecture. The Fifths and Fourths have, under Miss Coate's guidance, paid visits to the Museum to study Roman remains, and in School, there has been a series of "talks" on Greek Sculpture. The hope was entertained of fitting up a Sixth Form room with a classical trend in decoration, next year's girls being classically disposed; the present pressure on space, however, necessitates the postponement of the scheme and a homeless Sixth.

Another feature of the year has been the "Musical Appreciations," organised by Miss Giles, who has been responsible for the addresses. Our warmest thanks are accorded to Miss Ayrton, Miss Whittam and the Ladies' Orchestra, who have, from time to time, furnished the music, and to Mr. Nicholls who, on one occasion, kindly brought his fine gramophone to the School to take the place of the wind instruments.

The Choral Competition took place on June 7th. Mrs. Gibbons Frost had kindly promised to adjudicate, and it was a disappointment to all when she was prevented from fulfilling her engagement. Canon Hylton Stewart and Miss Hilda Giles most generously came to the rescue at the last moment. The West House took the first, the East second place; North and South tied. The standard of earlier years was not maintained; we look for a better performance next year.

The Debating Society was very active during the Autumn Term. On October 15th, by seven to two, it recorded its opinion "That Democracy is not safe for the World": a disheartening conclusion. At the next meeting, the motion "That Government Control is an Evil in Times of Peace," found a house equally divided. The term ended with a Sharp-practice Mock Debate on such weighty topics as "That Memory is a Nuisance"; "That Bad Spelling is a sign of Originality and Imagination"; "That Young Pigs would make useful and economical substitutes for Lapdogs."

The Prize Distribution took place in the Town Hall on October 29th; Mr. Gardner was in the Chair. Miss Maynard, formerly Principal of Westfield College, paid a special visit to Chester to distribute the prizes, and afterwards gave an address on the theme, "Life is Interesting." Her account of the difficulties encountered in the pursuit of Education a generation ago, was both instructive and amusing. It did suggest the reflection that when the path was less smooth, there was more enterprise and initiative on the part of the student in surmounting obstacles. A vote of thanks was moved by Bishop Mercer and seconded by Mr. W. R. Hale.

Towards the close of the Autumn Term, a most successful Sale of Work was opened by the Mayoress of Chester (Mrs. H. F. Brown). A full account of the proceedings is given elsewhere. We thank most cordially the many friends whose generous support enabled us to institute the new School Fund which has succeeded to the War Charities. Our thanks are due to Mr. Alfred Ayrton for kindly auditing the accounts.

At the end of the Summer Term, Miss Harrison left us to take up the appointment of Science Mistress in the Swansea High School. Our congratulations are now due to her on her appointment as Head Mistress of the Darlington Girls' School. Miss Macdonald, M.A., Edinburgh, took Miss Harrison's place in the Queen's School. Miss Jones is in charge of the boarding-house.

At the time of going to press, we are looking forward with pleasure to that most popular event, the Fathers' Cricket Match. Its glories will be revived by the publication of the result almost a year later.

In Memoriam.

DOROTHY TRAVERS.

On Sept. 9th, 1919, after months of suffering heroically borne, Miss Travers passed away. It had been known for some time that her health was affected, but the rapid development of the disease had been wholly unexpected. She left the School in June, 1919, after thirteen years of loyal and devoted service, in which her first concern had always been the success of the boarding-house and the welfare of the boarders to whom she was devoted. For some time, she had also had charge of all the domestic arrangements of the School, and her ability and zeal were manifested in the smoothness of the working and the comfort enjoyed by all. Nothing was too much trouble if it advanced the interests and increased the effectiveness of the School.

If any outward symbol were needed to keep fresh her memory amongst those who knew her, it would be provided by the Dorothy Travers Memorial Prize, the funds for which were subscribed by her many friends.

The Sale of Work.

A Sale of Work was held in the School Hall on Friday, December 5th, in aid of the General Purposes Fund of the School, which took the place of the War Charities Association previously existing.

The Sale was opened at 2-30 by the Mayoress of Chester, whose kindness in coming to us in the midst of all her engagements was greatly appreciated. She referred to the great interest she took in the School, being at once an Old Girl, a Parent of present pupils, and a Governor. She expressed pleasure in finding that the General Purposes Fund provided, not merely for contributions to charities, but for certain additions to the School itself, such as pictures and books for the Reference Library.

Extensive preparations had been made for some time before the Sale, and the result was seen in the well-filled stalls. One was devoted to charming cretonne boxes, while gaily-coloured handkerchiefs fluttered above. The Needlework stall kept up its traditions of supplying dainty camisoles, attractive little overalls, useful shoe-wraps, and many other things properly made and sold at reasonable prices. The Fruit and Vegetable stall soon disposed of its wares, as did the stall devoted to Groceries and Jam. Bran-pies were largely patronized, and most people tried their luck at the Competitions arranged in the Kindergarten. All, whether buyers or sellers, appreciated the Tea set out most attractively in the Dining Hall and the adjoining Form Rooms. The gifts of many kind friends and the efforts of the Cookery class had provided home-made cakes and scones, and the "tips" of the waitresses added a considerable sum to the proceeds.

On the conclusion of the Sale, the Hall was filled with chairs, and a short Concert took place, arranged by Miss Giles and consisting chiefly of Christmas Carols. The last item was a short Dramatic Sketch, entitled "A Nice Quiet Chat," in which Miss Giles, Miss Desgratoulet and Miss Ayrtton took part. Miss Giles delighted everyone as the exasperating but affectionate Aunt, who was ever on the point of departing but never actually went.

The proceeds of the Sale amounted to £84 18s. 3d., and our best thanks are due to Mrs. Brown and to all parents and friends for their kind help and support.

The Editor Perpend.

To publish or not publish, that's the question :
 Whether 't is nobler in the mind to chance it,
 The outlay inaccordant with the income,
 Or to resist the lure of journalism
 And, doing so, rest solvent. No proofs, no debts ;
 Thanks be ! And by one word to say we end
 The toil of dealing with the lawless stop,
 The tangled phrase, the spelling all their own
 Of youthful authorship ; 't is a temptation
 Not without force : to drop the pencil blue,
 To sleep, to dream. To dream ? Ay, there's the rub ;
 For in that sleep what fearsome dreams may come,
 If we evade the toils of editing,
 Must give us pause. There's the respect
 That scourges us once more to play our part.
 The printer's note polite : " We beg to say
 We have not yet been favoured with your orders
 For this year's Magazine, and June wears on."
 The note from an enthusiast : " I yearn
 For the next copy of 'Have Mynde.' The last
 Was ripping." " With these awful railway fares,
 I can't attend the meeting ; but I read
 The Mag from end to end. I like to know
 What the Old Girls are doing." " Please, Miss X,
 When are we going to have the Magazine ?"
 And thus the firm resolve is undermined
 By weak compunction. Sighing, we fill our pen,
 Stare uninspired at the unsullied sheet
 Of foolscap : Absit omen in the name !
 And write "The Chronicle" in bold round hand
 And wonder what comes next.—But soft you now,
 A knock at door.—"Come in. What's this ? A poem ?
 And for 'Have Mynde' ? That's capital, my dear,
 I'll look it through."

(NOTE.—The Authors of the following essays apologise to the Shade of Addison, but plead in extenuation of any offence that they have been reading Mr. Spectator's works for a whole term).

The Court of Grievances.

In my opinion, one of the greatest needs of the present day is some means of obtaining redress for those small, daily slights and annoyances which form the chief burden of existence. I have, accordingly, set up a Court which shall devote itself exclusively to the trial of such cases and the suitable punishment of offenders.

The first case brought before the Court was the indictment of Mary Ann Higginson by Brigadier-General Dash, for having compassed the ruin of his uniform, and caused him great discomfort in a public tram car. The prosecutor alleged that, between the hours of four and five in the afternoon, he had been on his way to the station in an already crowded tram, when the said Mrs. Higginson entered, bearing an umbrella, a large basket of vegetables, a string bag apparently containing fish, two bulky brown-paper parcels, a box of eggs, a waterproof and a howling child. The criminal then lowered herself, panting, into a very inadequate amount of space on the right of the Brigadier, burdening him with the greater portion of her baggage. She further endeavoured to appease her wailing infant with that most offensive of all fruits, an orange; the juice of which, mingled with the infant's tears, did great damage to the tunic sleeve of the prosecutor. Enraged by these insults from a mere civilian, he forced his way out of the tram and completed his journey on foot, to the further detriment of his uniform, as the rain was falling heavily.

The prisoner urged in her defence that she was an honest, hard-working woman, as had been doing a bit of shopping, and had as much right to a seat in the car as anyone else. She then proceeded to make sweeping statements with regard to staff officers in general, which were cut short, as the prosecutor was becoming visibly agitated. The jury retired and, after some consultation, gave their opinion as follows:—

“That the said Mrs. Higginson should pay the prosecutor the cost of having his uniform dry-cleaned; and that the prosecutor, being so fastidious in his tastes, should not, for the space of one month, travel in any public conveyance.

Further, they strongly recommended the Tramway Companies to make a regulation, limiting the weight of luggage to be taken inside the tram cars to a maximum of half a ton."

The verdict was confirmed.

Miss Theresa Nightingale was indicted by Thomas Thump, Esq., L.R.A.M., for disturbing his rest every night (Sundays included) for the past three weeks. Miss Nightingale, the prosecutor declared, had recently moved into the house next to his own in the block, and placed a piano up against the dividing wall, his bed being just on the other side. Moreover, she appeared to be under the delusion that she could both play and sing, and with praiseworthy perseverance persisted in practising every evening from 8 to 11-30 p.m. The worthy prosecutor, who went to bed regularly at half-past nine, was thus condemned to listen for nearly two hours to the prisoner's excruciating attempts to reach high C, accompanied by successive discords on a seemingly antediluvian piano. He pointed out the gentle irony of the fact that he was frequently kept awake by having "Sing me to Sleep, the Shadows Fall" warbled close to his ear, at least a semitone flat; and further stated that, unless these outrages ceased, it would soon become necessary to remove him to a lunatic asylum.

In her defence, the criminal insinuated that the prosecutor was losing his ear for music through senile decay. As a proof of the injustice of his criticisms, she offered to sing one or two songs to the assembly there and then; the Judge, however, declined, on the grounds that a Concert in the Court might create a bad precedent. The prisoner finding nothing more to say for herself, the Jury gave their verdict:—

"That, as this was a first offence, the criminal should escape with her life, but should be transported immediately, together with her piano, to a desert island, where supplies would be brought her by a deaf fisherman. If repentant after 10 years, she could return to civilisation, and a post as organ-grinder's assistant should be found for her by the prosecutor."

SYLVIA NESSIE BROWN (FORM V. UP.)

A Trial of Quarrels arising from Ladies' Fashions.

(The Proceedings of the Court of Honour, held in the Town Hall, the 24th of January, 1920, before
Thomas Johnson, Censor of Great Britain.)

Seeing that a Court of Honour did not exist in this country, I have lately instituted one, with myself as its president; in which capacity, I am privileged to receive the advice of a bench of ladies, conspicuous for their virtue, good breeding and common sense. Among the cases presented, there were several in which the quarrels had the same origin, namely, the eccentric fashions of the women of to-day.

Mrs. Josephine Meddler was indicted by Mrs. Sarah Paltry for having deliberately flicked the long plume of her hat into the left eye of the said Mrs. Paltry. The prosecutor alleged that she and the prisoner were sitting side by side at a concert. During the intervals, the said Josephine Meddler, by reason of constantly turning round, had brushed the feather of her hat three times into the eye of the said Sarah Paltry, causing that optic to water profusely. The criminal declared in her turn, that the offence was wholly unintentional; she had merely looked round several times to observe those who sat behind her. She added maliciously, that, in her opinion, the charge had been brought because of the prosecutor's mortification and jealousy in not herself possessing a hat bearing a plume. She would have added much more, but anticipating this irrelevance, I referred the judgment to the jury. The prisoner was found guilty of causing discomfort by inquisitiveness. It was ordered that the hat should be stripped of its plume, in court, by the said Sarah Paltry.

Mary Koppey, spinster, was indicted by Mrs. Joan Quibbler for having feloniously imitated the braiding on the gown of the said Joan Quibbler. The indictment set forth that the criminal had, while she and the prosecutor were drinking a dish of tea with a certain Mrs. McDoodal, examined the dress of the unsuspecting Joan Quibbler, and, later, at a card party, had appeared in a gown braided in a manner identical with that of the prosecutor's. It was alleged as a further aggravation against the defendant, that the prisoner had not had the grace to glanced furtively at the gown, but had stared audaciously at it, nay, had even tilted forward her chair to examine it the better. The prisoner pleaded guilty, whereupon the jury declared the braided dress of the criminal should be forfeited to the prosecutor, and that the prisoner should herself carry it to the house of the said Joan Quibbler.

MABEL DAVIES (FORM V. UP.)

The Queen's School Association of Past and Present Pupils.

The Annual General Meeting took place on Friday, 27th June, in the School Hall. Nineteen members were present; letters of regret for absence had been received from forty-one. Miss Clay took the chair at 3-10 p.m.

A list of new members enrolled during the year was read:—W. Abel, M. Barker-Jones, F. Davies, G. Dent, D. Edwards, D. Freeman, C. Gornall, Mrs. Rowson (F. Challinor, E. Wright. Two members had sent in their resignation.

The re-election of the existing officers (Hon. Treasurer, Mrs. Ayrton, Hon. Secretaries, K. Day and J. Brown) was proposed from the chair and carried unanimously. Five Committee members were then elected.

The Hon. Treasurer read the Balance Sheet. Its adoption was proposed by Mrs. Hollamby, seconded by Miss H. Giles and carried unanimously. A motion that the Hon. Treasurer be asked to invest £5 of the funds was proposed by Mrs. H. F. Brown, seconded by Mrs. Greening and carried. The Cot Treasurer read her Balance Sheet, also a letter of warm appreciation from the Treasurer of the Royal Infirmary for the £25 which had been contributed that year—thanks to the substantial donation from the proceeds of the School Sale and Entertainment in November. The adoption of the Balance Sheet was proposed by Mrs. Ayrton, seconded by J. Ayrton and carried unanimously.

A hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Walter Conway for auditing the accounts was passed, and the Treasurer was asked to convey the same to Mr. Conway.

On the motion of Miss Clay, seconded by Mrs. H. F. Brown, Miss Dickson was asked, and consented, to continue in her office of Cot Treasurer. A hearty vote of thanks to Miss Clay for presiding and editing "Have Mynde" was proposed by Mrs. H. F. Brown, seconded by J. Ayrton and carried with acclamation.

In her reply, Miss Clay alluded to the necessity for increasing the price of the Magazine to 1s. 6d. She asked the Meeting to join with her in an expression of regret at the enforced resignation of Miss Travers through serious and increasing illness. She offered congratulations to Joyce Ayrton and Ruth Dutton on their success in the Natural Science and History Tripos, respectively, and also mentioned that Mrs. Henry Woods, Sc.D., had been made a Fellow of the Geological Society.

Tea was served in the Dining Room at 4 o'clock. After tea, members went into the garden and looked on at a Tennis Tournament in which Mistresses and Past and Present Girls took part.

Association Notes.

There is a most pleasant record of successes and distinctions gained by Old Girls during the past year :—

Margaret Welsby was awarded a Cairns' Scholarship for Research at London University. She, however, did not take it up, preferring the mazes of the British Finance Section of the Peace Treaty in Paris.

Ruth Dutton passed Part I. of the History Tripos, and Joyce Ayrton the Natural Science Tripos. The latter also passed Part I. of the 2nd M.B. (Cambridge).

Betty Imison passed (in June 1919) Part B. of the 2nd M.B. (Liverpool) with distinction in Materia Medica, Pharmacy, Pharmacology; in December, she passed Part I. of the Final M.B.

Betty Briant has also past Part B. of the 2nd M.B. (Liverpool) and Part I. of the Final M.B.

Rosa Day has been awarded the Royal Red Cross (2nd Class) for her services as Matron from 1917 to 1919, of the Mendel Home for Disabled Soldiers and Sailors at Bromborough.

Marjorie Suds has obtained 1st Class in the Advanced Science Diploma at the Battersea Polytechnic, and is now on the Staff as lecturer on Chemistry, Physics, Practical Physiology and Bacteriology.

Phyllis Dodd passed the Board of Education Art Examination, and in the National Competition for which she entered, was awarded a Local Scholarship, tenable for three years, together with a maintenance allowance of £20 per annum. She had already been awarded a free studentship at the Liverpool School of Art, tenable for one year, and renewable for a second year on the recommendation of the Principal.

Peggy Gray has had an article published in the "Daily Mirror." Truly the Old Girls fill us with pride.

WHITE HEATHER.

Where the starry night shines brightest,
Where the Faëries dance the lightest,
Where the wafting wind most softly blows;
Where the moonbeams shine the bluest,
Where the Elfin pipes play truest,
There the fragrant, wild, white heather grows.

There, the songster trills the clearest,
There, in Spring, he courts his dearest,
Rippling brooklets echo to their song.
Mirror'd in its depths, white, shimm'ring,
To the heath in starlight glimm'ring,
Elves and green-clad, moorland Faëries throng.

JUDITH H. WELSBY (FORM V. LR.)

DAFFODILS.

One day, from Fairyland there strayed
 A princess, clad in sunlight beams;
 In each lone copse and mead she played,
 And in each valley planted dreams.
 Then o'er the purple moors she flew,
 And ere she vanished, kissed each hill,
 And where her lips had touched, there grew
 The golden-crested daffodil.

Since then, in ev'ry woodland dell,
 Where grassy banks adorn the rills,
 Between the primrose and hare-bell
 Grow slender, stately daffodils.
 When peeps the lark at early morn,
 She sees their saffron buds unfold;
 With gown of green, each flow'r is born
 And each is crowned with wreath of gold.

RITA ROUND (FORM V. LR.)

WIND.

Mr. Wind is out at play,
 Do we want him? Oh, nay! Oh, nay!
 The sea-gulls fly o'er the restless sea;
 They do not care for you and me.
 The wind doth blow them o'er the sea,
 With their wildest cry they flee, they flee.
 And inland they fly, in the clouded sky,
 From the angry sea with its waves so high.
 Some ship in distress on the rock-bound coast;
 The life-men then go out in a boat.
 That ship in distress is safe and afloat,
 And the men come back in the old life-boat.
 The wind is down; the waves are calm;
 No need, no need, for the gulls' alarm.
 And so to the sea that now is still,
 They fly back with a right good will.
 Each cloud is gone; the sun is bright;
 And the wind has taken its welcome flight.
